Course Description:

This course investigates the cultural, political, historical and industrial development and contexts of superhero film, television and media. Students will examine issues critical to the superhero genre, beginning with mythological archetypes and Hollywood heroes found in Westerns, Science Fiction and Action-Adventure. The course expands beyond Western-centric contexts by exploring established and emerging superheroes of India, the Middle East, China and Japan as well as key anime forms. Covering eight decades of film history, a study of film criticism and theory will engage with topics including identity politics and Capitalist values. The course explores the idea that cinematic superheroes invoke contemporary zeitgeists, providing an opportunity for students to better understand the evolving topicality of these film and television franchises and products.

Prerequisites:

FLM 4200 or AVC 4205

Aims and Objectives:

This course aims to explore central questions in the study of mainstream superhero cinema such as: How do superhero films develop? What does superhero cinema reveal about society's identities, ideologies and fears? What are the significant approaches to examine the form and grammar of superhero films? Students will in turn explore: a critical understanding of the theoretical approaches to the study of mainstream superhero cinema; develop a range of skills to research and assess varying source materials as they relate to the superhero genre; synthesize available information and develop academic arguments and reasoned judgments and appreciate superhero films in their cultural contexts; gain the ability to critically analyse a range of superhero media; develop a range of practical skills in relation to critical writing and clear communication, the ability to link theory, evidence and social issues, and effectively manage time and independent study.

Assessment:

This course conforms to the Richmond University Standard Assessment Norms approved at Academic Board and located at: <https://www.richmond.ac.uk/policies/>

Teaching Methodology:

The course includes screenings of extracts from feature films as well as short films. These will be followed by weekly lectures and class discussions. There will be additional assigned films to watch outside of class time. For some assignments in particular, students will be asked to seek out and analyse films of their own choosing as active researchers. Students should complete all the set readings for each week beforehand in order to participate fully in class discussion.

Student work is assessed through a variety of ways using both formative and summative approaches. Feedback is intended to help improve student approach to learning and achieve better results.
